

Emergency call for blood

Courier staff report

The American Red Cross issued a news release Monday asking for emergency blood and platelet donations because its supply on hand is less than three days.

The news release said blood and platelet supplies are being distributed to hospitals faster than donations are coming in.

The Red Cross said it tries to maintain a five-day supply of blood and platelet donations to effectively respond to emergencies and daily hospital needs without concern of running out. The news release said blood and platelet supplies are being distributed to hospitals faster than donations are coming in.

The organization said it collected 27,000 fewer blood and platelet donations during the Christmas and New Year's weeks than necessary to sustain a sufficient supply, a direct result of 1,350 fewer blood drives during the busy holiday season.

"Many people may not realize that blood products are perishable, and the only source of lifesaving blood for patients is volunteer blood donors," said Cliff Numark, senior vice president at Red Cross Biomedical Services, in the news release. "When donations decline — as they did around the holidays and may further decline if severe winter weather and flu season pick up — lifesaving medical treatments could be delayed."

The Red Cross is urging all eligible donors, especially platelet and blood donors with type O blood, to make an appointment to donate in the coming days, as the organization tries to rebuild its inventory for hospital patients. Donors are encouraged to use the free Blood Donor App to schedule an appointment, or by going to RedCrossBlood.org or by calling 1-800-Red-Cross (1-800-733-2767). Volunteer drives are desperately needed, the organization said.

Southwestern HS principal Bates interim superintendent

Jeff Bates, Southwestern's high school principal, was named the district's interim superintendent Monday evening at the meeting of the school's board of trustees.

Bates will fill in while the board searches for a full-time superintendent.

The board approved a contract addendum for Bates that included additional weekly pay and a monthly cell phone stipend while he performs superintendent duties on top of fulfilling his responsibilities as the high school principal.

The previous superintendent,

Trevor Jones, gave the school board his resignation early last December when he accepted the job as Scott County District 1 superintendent.

"They made me an offer I really couldn't refuse," Jones, who is from Scott County, said at the time. He attended and graduated from Scott County District 1.

Jones thanked the board Monday night at the meeting. "I've had 20 wonderful years here and I appreciate it."

And, Bates thanked Jones for help and advice if needed after Jones goes to Austin.

S'western students, teachers in training

By TALI HUNT

Southwestern students and staff worked together to learn about their own resiliency and how to help others who may need to lean on someone during tough times.

The daylong training session took the Rebels off campus to Hanover College where they worked with two trainers from Sources of Strength, an evidence-based prevention program for suicide, violence, bullying and substance abuse.

"It's not just for middle schoolers and high schoolers, it's for human beings," said Matt Hofmeister of Sources of Strength during the adult adviser-only session last week.

"Our counselors did a lot of research to find an evidence-based program that would help deal with difficult situations that teens get into and how to support them through that," said Edna Curl, special education teacher at Southwestern High School.

The program differs from other suicide-prevention programs by adding one of its key components: peer leaders.

"We like to think that teenagers will listen to us because we're older and have more experience, but that's not typically the case," said Curl. "They're going to listen to each other, they're going to contact each other long before they ever try to find an adult."

Peer leaders were nominated from all walks of life by 17 adult advisers who volunteered to take part in the first part of a three-year implementation plan.

"...Instead of teaching students risk factors, which is very important and we want students to understand the risk factors of suicide...we want to ask students: How did you get through that? What are your strengths and what helps you cope?..." explained Lori Slygh, a counselor at Southwestern High School.

About 40 students were nominated from Southwestern middle and high schools. The students were chosen by their teachers and administrators as students who might play a leadership

SOURCES OF STRENGTH

Sources of Strength uses a proactive, interactive approach compared to other suicide-prevention or anti-bullying programs that focus on providing adults with the information and training to intervene after a situation has begun or occurred for a student or group of students.

Peer leaders play an important role in their schools through Sources of Strength. The students were tasked with taking the skills, new way of thinking and new relationships with others outside their normal friend groups back to their campus — to their hallways, classrooms and lunchrooms — to shift any negative student norms to be positive.

To do this, the peer leaders will work together to make positive marketing campaigns to implement throughout their schools.

The campaigns will focus on different parts of the Sources of Strength wheel: mental health, medical access, spirituality, generosity, healthy activities, mentors, positive friends and family support.

Sources teaches what to look for and how to have conversations with someone who may be struggling at school, at home or anywhere.

As they participated in different interactive activities last Wednesday inside the Ogle Center, students learned that sometimes you have to ask for help or take a step back and try to solve a problem with a method other than a usual one to break the cycle of stress and negative feelings.

"Life can be rough but if you slow down, you learn how to achieve it after awhile," said Shaniyah Cosby-Barker, a sophomore at Southwestern High School, about a lesson she learned from one of the day's activities. (Photo from SourcesOfStrength.org)

Early Sunday morning fire destroys car on Franks Drive

A news release from the department said units confirmed that the vehicle was "fully engulfed with exposures to the north and south." A vehicle parked near the engulfed car was damaged because of its proximity to the fire. MFD and the Madison Police Department responded to and are investigating the cause of the blaze. The Jefferson County Sheriff's Department also responded. (Submitted by the Madison Fire Department)

Jail again above its rated capacity of 207 inmates

By KEN DE LA BASTIDE
(Anderson) Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON – After months of having significantly fewer incarcerations in Madison County, the numbers are back on the rise.

The Madison County Sheriff’s Department reported Friday there were 397 people in custody either at the county jail, with the Madison County Community Corrections or being housed in other counties.

There were 285 inmates in the jail on Thursday in a facility with a capacity of 207. In September, there were 227.

Sheriff Scott Mellinger said that between January and July of last year the average number of inmates was 280 per day.

Commissioner John Richwine and Ashley Hopper, then county attorney, brought all the stakeholders together to determine where the current system was lacking when it came to processing court cases.

The county started working with consultants from the National Institute of Corrections to implement best practices to reduce the number of people in the jail.

Madison Circuit Court Division 4 Judge David Happe said the increased jail population was partly a result of a number of warrant requests at the end of 2018 for violations.

He said with Andrew Hopper being elected judge of Madison Circuit Court Division 3 a number of cases are being transferred to other courts.

Officials in the pilot bond program establish their own programs, Happe said.

“They are set on local priorities,” he said. “This is a step in the right direction. Madison County will set up our own standards based on a consensus of the prosecutor’s office, judges and sheriff.”

Mellinger said a pilot program was started in several Indiana counties in 2016 to implement local bond reform.

“Every offender is scored based on their current charges, criminal history and if the crime was violent,” he said. “If they score below a center number they are released on their own recognizance.”

Mellinger said after two years there has been a significant decline in the jail population and less than 10 percent of those charges commit another crime or fail to appear for a court hearing.

He said the recent upsurge is because there is no longer a priority to keep the number of inmates at a reasonable level.

“It’s possible we have reached the saturation point,” Mellinger said. “There are very few people that meet the criteria to be released on their own recognizance.”

Commissioner Richwine said Friday the county is meeting with the state court administrator to establish local standards similar to other Indiana counties.

“I haven’t looked at why the numbers are up,” Richwine said.

Last year the commissioners wanted to hire a case manager to track the number of inmates in the jail, but funding for the position was denied by the Madison County Council.

The state pilot program began in 2016 after the Indiana Supreme Court issued Criminal Rule 26, which encouraged state courts to release low-risk offenders without bail.

Judges still have the latitude to set bail or hold offenders if they are deemed a flight risk or danger to themselves or others.

To assess offenders, each pilot county utilizes the Indiana Risk Assessment System Pre-trial Assessment Tool, referred to as IRAS-PAT.

Counties may use additional assessment tools.

Trained staff administer the IRAS-PAT during a brief face-to-face interview with an offender in jail following an arrest.

The assessment includes seven questions on criminal history, employment, housing stability and drug use.

Woman settles lawsuit over jailing due to mistaken identity

Indiana

VALPARAISO — A woman who alleged she was wrongfully jailed for nearly two months in a case of mistaken identity has reached a $6,000 settlement in the case. The Post-Tribune reports court records show that Gloria J. Blue of Gary also will get attorneys’ fees as part of this month’s settlement. Blue sued the Porter County Sheriff’s Office and others in September in federal court. She alleged she was charged with felony drug dealing and jailed after a confidential informant falsely told a county police officer that she delivered cocaine. Blue says she regularly told jail officials that they had the wrong person, but was ignored. Authorities in March reviewed evidence, including video footage of drug deals, and concluded Blue was not, in fact, involved. Charges against her were dismissed.

Autopsies set for 2 jail inmates who died

LAFAYETTE — Autopsies are planned on two inmates who died Saturday after falling ill in their cells at the same jail. Tippecanoe County Sheriff Bob Goldsmith says Isaiah Powe, 42, and Bonny Ahlrich, 56, were in separate parts of the county jail’s holding area in Lafayette when they were stricken. He says “all indications” point to medical problems in their deaths. Preliminary autopsy results are expected Monday afternoon. The Journal & Courier reports Ahlrich was arrested Jan. 4 on a warrant. She was found dead in her cell Saturday afternoon. Powe died at a hospital after being found unresponsive Saturday morning in his bunk, hours after being booked on charges of criminal confinement and unlawful possession of a firearm by a serious violent felon. Both Powe and Ahlrich were homeless.

Inaugural marks new terms of 3 officials

INDIANAPOLIS — A State-house ceremony marked the start of new terms for Indiana’s secretary of state, auditor and treasurer. A couple hundred people attended Monday’s formal inaugural for Secretary of State Connie Lawson, Auditor Tera Klutz and Treasurer Kelly Mitchell. All three are Republicans who won in the November election and started four-year terms on Jan. 1. Lawson and Mitchell won bids for second full terms in their offices, while Klutz was on the statewide ballot for the first time after being appointed auditor in early 2014. Lawson was a state senator from Danville before becoming the state’s chief elections officer. Mitchell is a former Cass County commissioner, and Klutz previously was the Allen County auditor. Democrats haven’t held any of the three offices since 1994.

Investigation ongoing after police shoot man

HUBBELLS CORNER — An investigation continues after state police say officers fatally shot a man after he pointed a firearm at them as they were responding to a disturbance. Indiana State Police identified the man who was killed over the weekend as 58-year-old Christopher A. Schmitt. Police say a state trooper and a Dearborn County sheriff’s deputy were investigating a report of an armed man when they approached a home Saturday morning in rural Dearborn County near the village of Hubbells Corner, about 30 miles west of Cincinnati. Police said Schmitt, who lived at the home, pointed a firearm at them and both officers fired. Schmitt was pronounced dead at a hospital. The officers involved were identified as Trooper Jordan Craig and Deputy Brian Weigel. Neither was injured.

Man opens fire inside bingo hall, 1 injured

EVANSVILLE — Police say a man opened fire during a bingo game inside a crowded Veterans of Foreign Wars post, wounding one person before being tackled by patrons. Evansville Police Sgt. Mark Saltzman says hundreds of people were playing bingo when the shooter opened fire Sunday evening. Saltzman says the alleged gunman was quickly detained. Saltzman says the suspect and the person who was shot had a long-running personal dispute. The victim is hospitalized with non-life-threatening injuries. Witness Murray Wilson Jr. tells the Evansville Courier & Press that he and several other people tackled the gunman and held him until officers arrived. Wilson said he’d been playing bingo with his sister when they heard a loud “bang noise.”

Mourners remember 2 boys killed with dad

MARION — Classmates were among the mourners at a funeral for two brothers who were fatally shot two weeks ago. Javon Blackwell Jr., 12, and Jayzon Blackwell, 11, wore baseball caps in caskets at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church in Marion. They were killed with their father, Javon Blackwell Sr., on Dec. 30, 2018. The boys attended Anderson Preparatory Academy. Michelle Shirley, a substitute teacher, attended the service Saturday with her children, who knew the boys. She tells The Herald Bulletin that Jayzon was a “real character.” Ivanna Shirley says Javon, her classmate, “made everyone laugh,” even teachers. Anderson Preparatory students collected $1,300 to help the family, especially with funeral costs. Police are still investigating the deaths.

Department of Tourism releases new guide

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Tourism has released a new visitor’s guide that features stories by Kentuckians telling of their own experiences. The agency says the 2019 Official Kentucky Visitor’s Guide focuses on some of the highlights of the state’s tourism industry, including bourbon, food, horses, outdoors, history, music, arts and events, as well as regional features. Tourism Commissioner Kristen Branscum said in a news release that the guide gives visitors insider information to help them plan their trip. The guide features each of the nine tourism regions with information on attractions, lodging and cities in each.

Sen. Rand Paul scheduled for surgery

LOUISVILLE — U.S. Sen. Rand Paul’s attorneys say in a court filing that he plans to undergo hernia surgery in Canada because of injuries he suffered when a neighbor attacked Paul while he was doing yard work at his Kentucky home. The filing in Paul’s lawsuit against Rene Boucher says the senator will travel to Ontario, Canada, for outpatient surgery scheduled later this month. The document says the surgery is related to the 2017 attack. Boucher pleaded guilty to assaulting a member of Congress and was sentenced to 30 days in prison. Federal prosecutors are appealing the sentence. A Paul spokeswoman didn’t immediately explain why Paul is having the surgery in Canada, where medical care is publicly funded and universally provided. Paul touts private-market approaches for U.S. health care problems.

Woman drove drunk to ‘teach her son a lesson’

LEXINGTON — A woman charged with drunken driving told police she did it “to teach her son a lesson.” News outlets report Sunita Jairam, 48, was arrested early Sunday on charges including endangering the welfare of a minor. Her arrest citation says she told police she “drank a bunch of beer” and drove at 150 mph. It’s unclear what lesson she was trying to impart. The son told police he tried to get out of the BMW subcompact several times, but the door was locked. News outlets didn’t list his age. Booking records show Jairam’s blood alcohol content was 0.161, twice the legal limit. Records show she was previously charged with public intoxication and speeding. It’s unclear whether she has a lawyer.

NO. 12

PETS OF THE WEEK

HOLLY, above, is a very friendly gal and loves to cuddle. She greets visitors in the front lobby when they visit the shelter. The staff let Holly wander around the lobby because she is much happier out of her cage. Holly is a Tabico. She has brown Tabby stripes with orange Calico patches mixed in. Holly does not mind dogs as long as they are not too energetic. Holly is hoping her new family will buy her lickable cat treats. Holly is only 1-year-old and may grow a bit since she is lean. Holly is $45 off her adoption and spay fee. MARMEE, below, is a sweetheart who is looking for a family to love. She has a beautiful, dark-coffee brindle coat. She is a Plott Hound. Marmee was found with her four puppies who have been adopted. Marmee is good with other dogs. Cats make her nervous though. It would be best to either not have cats in her new family or a family willing to give her lots of time and training to become used to cats. Marmee is also not used to being on a leash, but when taken slow and encouraged, she will follow. Marmee is 3- to 5-years-old and a gentle 72 lbs. Marmee is spayed, up-to-date on vaccinations, and $55 to adopt.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 7 dogs or puppies, and 10 cats or kittens. Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is jcas39@seidata.com

Dogs and Cats are $30 plus prepayment of their spay/neuter and rabies vaccination. Cats who are already spayed/neutered are $45 plus prepayment of their rabies vaccination if it is needed. Dogs who are already spayed/neutered are $55 plus prepayment of their rabies vaccination if it is needed. The total cost of the spay/neuter and rabies vaccination varies depending on the veterinarian or clinic chosen.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the “Walk for a Dog” or “WoofTrax” app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. Recent donations have helped get treatment for a beagle with a skin infection and a cat with wounds. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner’s name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

Should opposites attract?

Editor’s Note: Annie Lane is off this week. The following column was originally published in October 2016.

Dear Annie: I am a soon-to-be divorced man who has suffered a great deal of pain after the collapse of my lengthy marriage.

After enduring the dissolution of multiple post-separation relationships, I found what in many ways is the perfect woman. As we have gotten to know each other, however, we have found huge ideological gulfs between us.

My significant other does not vote. She does not believe in vaccination. Her disapproval of the gay lifestyle extends to having animosity toward gay individuals. She believes they flaunt a deviance that they have chosen. She believes in conspiracy theories, putting stock in the theory that the Pentagon was damaged by a missile in 2001, that there was no plane that flew into it. Her positions rankle me.

Do you believe that a relationship between individuals who are opposites in many respects can survive and thrive? — Night and Day

Dear Night: There are the sorts of pairs that are complementary “opposites,” who together find balance and more meaning through each other, e.g., yin and yang, night and day, peanut butter and jelly. But your pairing sounds more like Pop Rocks and soda -- explosive and causing much bellyaching.

My question for you is: Why the rush into dating? I suggest you put that on hold until your divorce is finalized. Once you’ve turned the last page in that painful chapter of your life, you can attempt to start fresh. You are used to being in a relationship and may compulsively be seeking a woman to fill that role. Don’t be in such a rush to partner up that you settle for someone and find yourself wanting to excuse away major issues.

Dear Annie: I’m a 14-year-old boy from New Jersey. I just started high school and am involved in clubs and on the junior varsity football team. I’m not a straight-A student, but I make pretty good grades, mostly B’s and some A’s.

My parents got divorced when I was really little; I barely remember it. Both of them have since remarried. I live with my mom and stepdad most of the time (spending some weekends with my dad).

I have an elder brother, who is 17, and a little brother, who is 4. My elder brother has had all sorts of problems since he was about 12 or 13. He has anger issues and shows our parents no respect, even cursing them out sometimes. He has slacked off in school and done things like faking signatures on failing tests he was supposed to take home to show our mom. I know there have been plenty of other incidents that my family has tried to keep secret from me to protect me.

Last year, they sent him to a program on a ranch for three months. It was kind of like a school/camp/rehab for troubled teens. He was responsible for taking care of animals there, and it seemed to help him a lot. But less than a month after he got back, he started going back to his old bad ways again.

My parents are always so busy dealing with my brother’s issues that I feel as if they barely even notice me. I sometimes feel as if I’m being punished for being the good kid. What can I do to make them take more notice of me? — Middle Child

Dear Middle: It’s not easy being golden. You’re a great blessing in your parents’ lives, and there’s no doubt in my mind that they know it, but they’re focusing their attention on the ongoing crises with your elder brother. Tell them how you feel. It might not exactly be fair that you have to remind them you need attention, too, but it’s fortunate for your family to have someone as mature and patient as you on the team.

‘Game of Thrones’ final season

NEW YORK (AP) — “Game of Thrones” fans, get ready. HBO announced Sunday night that the eighth and final season will begin on April 14. In a one minute and 44 second teaser released Sunday, Arya Stark (Maisie Williams), Sansa Stark (Sophie Turner) and Jon Snow (Kit Harington) are seen in the crypts of Winterfell.

Fans have eagerly awaited the six-episode finale of the show since Season 7 of the popular HBO show ended in August 2017.

The fantasy series based on the George R.R. Martin novels has been one of HBO’s most successful shows.

HBO isn’t getting out of the “Game of Thrones” business. A prequel created by Martin and writer-producer Jane Goldman is underway, with Naomi Watts set to star, and other spinoffs are possible.

Trump temptation temporarily taboo

By Phillip Alder

When declarer wins his first trick, should he immediately play a trump? In particular, if he is missing the trump ace or his loser count is too high, he should think twice.

This deal was played by one of the world's best declarers, Geir Helgemo. He was born in Norway, but represents Monaco in international competitions. How did he play in five diamonds after West led the spade king?

Many Americans would open that North hand with one diamond, but if partner is going to be on lead, one club has more going for it. The awkward auction for one club occurs if East overcalls one spade, South makes a negative double, and West passes. Neither of North's choices, one no-trump or two hearts, is thrilling. But each could work better than opening one diamond and rebidding two clubs in that scenario. (I like one club, planning to rebid one no-trump when West does not raise spades.)

With two trump losers, it looked as though Helgemo needed luck in clubs, which, you will have noticed, he was not getting. But Helgemo found the way home.

He ruffed the spade lead, crossed to the heart queen, ruffed the spade queen, cashed the heart ace and king, played a club to the ace and led the diamond queen; maybe East would have covered with king-doubleton. Not here, but East was now endplayed. When he led a spade, declarer discarded a club from his hand and ruffed on the board. Next, South cashed the club king. When West pitched a spade, Helgemo exited with a trump to endplay West. On his major-suit return, Helgemo ruffed in the dummy and sluffed his last club. Pretty!

Utah mall shooting that wounded 2 was gang dispute

By BRADY McCOMBS

MURRAY, Utah (AP) — A shooting at a suburban Salt Lake City mall that sent hundreds of panicked shoppers fleeing started as an argument between rival gang members inside the mall and later erupted in gunfire outside, leaving two people wounded, police said Monday.

Two 19-year-old men were arrested on suspicion of attempted aggravated murder, but investigators are not yet sure if either of them fired the shots that hit the victims, who were also involved in the brawl, said Kenny Bass, a police spokesman in the Salt Lake City suburb of Murray.

Shots were fired by the both sides, and those injured were believed to be people with the gangs. No bystanders were hit or injured, Bass said. Compounding the pandemonium, a fire alarm at the Fashion Place mall that had been malfunctioning for days went off inside the mall, sending people running for exits, Bass said.

Shoppers reported hearing the alarm after the shooting started about 1:30 p.m. and evacuation orders over a loudspeaker, while employees said they hunkered down in stockrooms and waited. Investigators are still looking for others involved in the dispute and trying to locate more witnesses, Bass said. The members of the rival gangs crossed paths by chance in the mall and their argument turned physical after it went outside, Bass said.

One of the two victims, a woman in her early 20s, was treated and released hours after the shooting broke out, Bass said. A man, also in his early 20s, remained hospitalized Monday in critical condition.

The suspects were identified as Jesus J. Payan-Mendoza and Jorge C. Gonzalez. No attorney was listed in court records for either man.

Fashion Place is a popular shopping center in the heart of the Salt Lake City metro area. It was open Monday.

A 2007 shooting at a different Salt Lake City mall killed five people and wounded four others. The 18-year-old gunman was killed in a shootout with police.

120 days in jail in arrest at Turkey Shootout

Courier staff report

Sean Monroe was sentenced in the Jefferson County Superior Court last week on charges of possession of a controlled substance and possession of a knife on school property.

Monroe was arrested in November 2018 at Madison Consolidated High School during the Turkey Shoooutout game.

Monroe was sentenced to 365 days with 245 days suspended. He will serve 120 days in jail and be placed on probation upon release. He was ordered to pay fines and fees totaling $735.

Madison Consolidated

Schools’ Resource Officers Jacob McVey and Tim Armstrong arrested Monroe at the Nov. 21 game on charges of possession of a knife on school grounds and illegal possession of Xanax.

The probable cause affidavit filed in the case said Armstrong and McVey identified the pills in the bottle as Xanax, two types of Clonazepam and another Schedule III drug, Buprenorphine Hydrochloride. Possession of these drugs led to a change in Monroe’s charges from illegal possession of Xanax to possession of a controlled substance.

role in their friend group, are bridges between different student groups or might have the potential to help students on the fringes who may not have as many relationships within their school as others.

“It’s a tough subject to talk about,” said Lake Lambert, a senior at Southwestern High School and peer leader. “They’re doing a great job of incorporating the tough subject but making it interesting and fun for the wide ranges of grades to relate to.”

Students from sixth through 12th grade were nominated to become peer leaders.

“It was a heartwarming fun day without any preconceived labels on anyone,” said Yvonna Thomas, a middle school math teacher. “We were just individuals from all walks of life enjoying and supporting each other, together making stronger bonds, experiencing the Sources of Strength motto to ‘spread hope, help, and strength into every corner of our community.’”

“I really like being together with the teachers,” said Samara Sims, senior at Southwestern High School and peer leader. “...it’s a lot better to be with them in an environment where we feel kind of on the same level instead of us just sitting there and them telling us how things are going to go.”

The trainers who worked with Southwestern’s first group of leaders, Homeister and Carey Franklin, explained that Sources of Strength tries to provide students and adults with the skills they need to be able to help others in their community.

“Our goal is...to make sure that in each group we start to see bridges being built, and that’s what we’re hoping the peer leaders will be able to do for us in our community,” said Curl.

Curl said she was able to see changes in the students about halfway through the day. They were communicating with people outside their normal groups and some were more willing to volunteer to participate than they are normally in a classroom setting.

Hofmeister told the adult advisers that sometimes adults like to think they can set a culture for the kids and teens in their lives, but that’s not how it works.

“Teens set their own culture and decide with their peers what is important to them and what their norms are,” said Hofmeister.

“Personally, my favorite part about the training was seeing the students and staff interacting in a positive, fun, and exciting environment outside of the classroom,” said Devin Briery, counselor at Southwestern Middle School. “I think it’s important for students to see educators in a different light as well as teachers seeing their students in a different light. I believe that in the 5 hours we all spent together, new relationships between staff and students were formed and ones that were already formed, grew stronger. It has truly recharged my spirit.”

Southwestern Schools received a grant from the Madison-Jefferson County Community Foundation to pay for the first year’s training. It expects to have to continue to pay for the program through means such as grants.

Daylong training sessions will be next year and the year after to review the skills for those returning to the program, troubleshoot any problems that might have developed over the first year and train new adult advisers and peer leaders.

“I’ve talked to a lot more people here than I would at school, and I think we’re going to be friends in the long run,” said Cosby-Barker.

“I truly feel this program will not only impact our school and students but each of us will share and care for our community,” said Morgan Hensley, a Southwestern Middle School teacher and adult adviser. “Having so many who are now motivated and ready to grow can only help our community.”

Southwestern Schools is the 21st district in Indiana to start implementing the program and the first in the southern part of the state. Others include one in Valparaiso and 19 districts further north.

Trump argues wetlands rollback is a benefit to farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump pointed to farmers Monday as winners from the administration’s proposed rollback of federal protections for wetlands and waterways across the country, describing farmers crying in gratitude when he ordered the change.

But under longstanding federal law and rules, farmers and farmland already are exempt from most of the regulatory hurdles on behalf of wetlands that the Trump administration is targeting. Because of that, environmental groups long have argued that builders, oil and gas drillers and other industry owners would be the big winners if the government adopts the pending rollback, making it easier to fill in bogs, creeks and streams for plowing, drilling, mining or building.

Government numbers released last month support that argument.

Real estate developers and those in other business sectors take out substantially more permits than farmers for projects impinging on wetlands, creeks, and streams, and who stand to reap the biggest regulatory and financial relief from the Trump administration’s rollback of wetlands protections.

Speaking to the American Farm Bureau Federation in New Orleans, Trump told farmers the federal protections for waterways and wetlands were “one of the most ridiculous” regulations.

“It was a total kill on you and other businesses,” Trump said. He claimed farmers and builders alike wept in gratitude when he signed an executive order in 2017, as one of first official acts of his presidency, directing a rewrite of the wetlands protections.

“We’re going to keep federal regulators out of your stock tanks, your drainage ditches, your puddles and your ponds,” Trump told the cheering farmers Monday.

Opponents contend Trump and his administration put farmers front and center as beneficiaries of the proposed rollback because of the strong regard Americans historically hold for farming.

“The administration understands good optics in surrounding themselves with farmers,” in proposing the rollback, said Geoff Gisler, a senior attorney at the Southern Environmental Law Center. “Surrounding themselves with folks that would represent the industries that actually benefit would not be as good an optic.”

Backers “have been really happy to have farmers be the face of it,” said Kenneth Kopocis, the Environmental Protection Agency’s deputy assistant administrator for water under the Obama administration. But the building industry, oil and gas and others with lower profiles in the campaign “are going to be some of the big beneficiaries.”

The more than 300-page financial analysis the administration released last month when it formally proposed the rollback appears to starkly quantify that disparity. Of 248,688 federal permits issued from 2011 to 2015 for work that would deposit dirt or other fill into protected wetlands, streams and shorelines, the federal government on average required home builders and other developers to do some kind of mitigation — pay to restore a wetland elsewhere, generally — an average of 990 times a year, nationwide, according to the government’s analysis.

In all, other industries and agriculture obtained an average of 3,163 such wetlands permits with some kind of extra payment or other mitigation strings attached each year.

Farmers represented just eight of those on average in a year, according to the administration’s figures.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which administers the wetlands protections with the Environmental Protection Agency, and the National Association of Home Builders confirmed Friday that developers and other industries, not farmers, have felt the biggest impact from the federal wetlands protections and would get most of the financial breaks.

“The residential construction industry does pull more wetlands permits than farmers do,” Liz Thompson, spokeswoman for the National Association of Home Builders, said in an email.

The Trump administration’s pending rollback of wetlands protections “could be a benefit to builders who will see some relief in terms of cost and time. That said, builders will still be regulated and will still be the industry that pulls the largest number of 404 permits which are very costly,” Thompson wrote, referring to the section of the Clean Water Act dealing with the regulatory enforcement and permits.

The administration’s proposal greatly narrows what kind of wetlands and streams fall under federal protection. If it formally adopts it after a public comment period, it would change how the federal government enforces the landmark 1972 Clean Water Act and scale back a 2015 Obama administration rule on what waterways are protected. Environmental groups say millions of miles of streams and wetlands would lose protection.

Trump signed an order in February 2017 directing the rollback. With farmers as well as homebuilders by his side, Trump called the waterways protections then in force a “massive power grab” targeting “nearly every puddle or every ditch on a farmer’s land.”

The farm bloc has been one of the most loyal to Trump, despite farmers’ complaints that the administration has favored oil and gas producers over corn ethanol farmers, and their worries over a trade war with China.

Acting EPA head Andrew Wheeler surrounded himself with farm bureau representatives and farm-state Congress members in signing the rollback proposal last month.

Farmers who support the rollback call the federal protections of wetlands and creeks a burden, and insist farmers know best how to protect their property.

Environmental groups, public-health organizations and others say it’s impossible to keep the country’s downstream lakes, rivers and water supplies clean unless upstream waters are also regulated federally. The targeted regulations also protect wildlife and their habitats.

The Clean Water Act permits deal with work that would dump dirt or fill into a wetland or waterway. Breaks for farmers long have been written into the law, so that a farmer doesn’t need permits for ordinary ongoing farming that, for instance, sends some soil running off into a wetland.

The American Farm Bureau Federation — one of the most active promoters of the scaling back of the Clean Water Act’s reach — says the 2015 Obama version of the rule could force farmers to pursue costly wetlands permits and mitigation for routine plowing and other farm work.

“It’s just really a nightmare for farmers to have to navigate,” said Don Parrish, the senior director of regulatory relations at the agriculture trade group. “It can cost them the use of the land, generally they have to stop using their land” if they run afoul of it.

“If you could see me, I’d be laughing” at that claim, Kopocis, the lead Obama water official behind the 2015 rule, said by phone Sunday. “Every single exemption or exclusion that agriculture had” was preserved in the Obama administration’s 2015 work on the wetlands rule, he said.

In an email, Cindy Barger, an Army Corps of Engineers official involved in the proposed regulatory change, confirmed that the rules targeted by the Trump administration had kept the regulatory relief for farmers.

Compared to other industries, as wetlands protections currently stand, “the agricultural industry has less economic exposure because of the permit exemptions,” Barger said. The gain for farmers would be the Trump administration’s attempt to streamline definition of protected wetlands, meaning farmers wouldn’t have to consult experts to know if an area is protected, she said.

Early SNAP benefits distribution is moved up

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana’s early distribution of February’s food stamp benefits because of the partial federal government shutdown has been moved up three days.

The state’s Family and Social Services Administration announced last week that it would distribute February’s Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits this Saturday for about 585,000 Indiana residents.

The agency said it will now issue Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits for February on Wednesday, Jan. 16, after the U.S. Department of Agriculture informed the agency that those benefits must be distributed Wednesday as a one-time early benefit because of the ongoing government shutdown.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Sonny Perdue told states last week to issue the February benefits early.

The family and social services administration is “strongly” encouraging Indiana’s SNAP recipients to budget February benefits to ensure that they’ll cover food needs throughout the month.

Indiana’s SNAP benefits are usually issued over a 19-day period each month. January benefits are being distributed by the normal schedule, the news release said.

Applications for January benefits distribution will be accepted and processed through Jan. 31.

Southwestern senior guard Tyler Kramer announced on Twitter on Monday that he has committed to play basketball at Mount St. Joseph University near Cincinnati.

The 6-foot-1 guard is averaging 20.3 points per game so far this season for the Class 2A No. 1 Rebels. He scored his 1,000th career point as a junior and his current 1,420 career points is fourth-most in school history.

Charleston S. hires Denson

NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Notre Dame's all-time leading rusher Autry Denson Jr. has been named Charleston Southern's head football coach.

Denson gained 4,318 yards and scored 43 touchdowns for the Fighting Irish from 1995-98. He spent the past four seasons as Notre Dame's running backs coach and helped the team to a 12-0 regular season and a spot in the College Football Playoff. The Fighting Irish lost to national champion Clemson 30-3 in the Cotton Bowl.

Charleston Southern athletic director Jeff Barber said Monday that Denson stood out as both a coach and a recruiter. Denson takes over for Mark Tucker, who went 11-11 in two seasons with the Buccaneers.

Denson was also an assistant coach at Bethune-Cookman and Miami of Ohio before joining Notre Dame's staff.

Charleston Southern is part of the Big South Conference in the Football Championship Subdivision.

Arctic blast headed for AFC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Break out the parkas for Sunday night's AFC title game at Arrowhead Stadium.

The National Weather Service is projecting an arctic blast to settle over Kansas City for the Chiefs' game against the New England Patriots. Temperatures at kickoff could range from 10 degrees to well below zero, potentially making it the coldest game in Arrowhead Stadium history.

Twice it has been 1 degree at kickoff, including a December 2016 game against Tennessee.

Both teams are accustomed to cold, inclement weather, though.

The Chiefs experienced some of it this past weekend, when heavy snow blanketed Kansas City and knocked out power to thousands of people. The snow stopped just before kickoff, though, and the field was in good shape for their 31-13 victory over the Colts.

The wind chill was in the teens for the Patriots' win over the Los Angeles Chargers on Sunday.

NBC golf to expand ball tracker

UNDATED (AP) — The NBC Sports Group and Topgolf Entertainment are unveiling a new technology partnership which they are hoping will bring golfers and casual fans closer to the sport.

The multiyear agreement includes the expansion of Toptracer as the network's ball-tracking technology for PGA Tour telecasts on NBC and The Golf Channel.

Toptracer tracks the golf ball's flight and can provide information such as ball speed, apex, curve and carry.

NBC will have exclusive use of Toptracer on all 18 holes, beginning with the Waste Management Phoenix Open scheduled from Jan. 31 through Feb. 3. The technology will be used mainly during tee shots via a live shot or a trace over a graphic of the hole.

Toptracer can also track fairway shots with two mini-cameras that can be used anywhere on the course.

"Viewers want more information because they say it helps improve the telecast," said NBC golf producer Tommy Roy. "To be able to have Toptracer on all 18 holes is going to be able to tell the story from tournaments better."

Toptracer was started as Protracer in Sweden in 2006 by Daniel Forsgren, who was annoyed he couldn't see the flight of tee shots while watching golf on television.

Huskers wire to wire winners at No. 25 IU

BLOOMINGTON — Nebraska found itself in the zone Monday night.

The No. 25 Indiana Hoosiers looked completely befuddled.

As Glynn Watson Jr. scored 15 points, Isaac Copeland added 14 and James Palmer flirted with a triple double, it was a smothering defense that helped Nebraska pull away for a 66-51 upset — its second straight victory on the Hoosiers' home court.

"At halftime, I said 'It's OK to win with defense,'" Cornhuskers coach Tim Miles said, trying to steady his team. "This is sure a confidence builder."

The Huskers (13-4, 3-3 Big Ten) won their second straight overall, extended their winning streak in the series to a school-record three and racked up style points by limiting the nation's second-best shooting team to its lowest point total and worst shooting percentage (36.5) of the season.

All it took was a fast start and Mills' trademark 1-3-1 defense to rattle the lethargic Hoosiers (12-5, 3-3), who never recovered from a dismal start. Indiana has lost three straight overall and had its home-court winning streak snapped at 10.

"That was probably one of the most disappointing games that we've played as a team this season. We didn't have any energy, any pop, either end of the floor,"

Indiana coach Archie Miller said. "I didn't think that we played with near enough energy to compete in this league. Offensively we were just horrendous in the first half."

It wasn't a matter of what went wrong but what didn't?

While Romeo Langford scored 18 points and Juwan Howard had 17 points and eight rebounds, nobody

Trimble Co. girls route Wyverns 67-29 to halt 8-game losing skid

Trimble County spotted winless St. Francis an early lead then ripped off 23-straight points en route to a 67-29 win in girls basketball Monday at home.

The Lady Raiders, who had gone nearly a calendar month since their last win on Dec. 15 against Southwestern, had nine different players score in the game and knocked down eight 3-pointers to halt an eight-game losing streak.

"We got over that two-win mark which was good because two was all that we won last year," Trimble County coach Kerrie Stewart said. "This is one I expected to win but with our youth and our inexperience you can never be sure of anything. The thing I was the most proud of wasn't the final score but that everybody played hard. That's what we've really been trying to focus on this year."

St. Francis (0-14) scored baskets on two of its first three possessions and led 4-2 less than two minutes into the game. Rather than take a chance and give the young Wyverns any momentum, Stewart opted to call a timeout to settle her team down.

The move worked. Abby Ponder came out of the timeout and swished a 3-pointer then drilled another on the team's next possession and the Raiders were rolling.

Trimble County (3-12) ended up scoring 23-straight points and led 25-4 after the first quarter. St. Francis recovered to score 11 points in the second quarter but the game was all but over.

"We're not at a level of play yet to where we can let them work through some things and try to figure it out," Stewart said of the quick timeout.

else scored more than five. And aside from Langford and Morgan, who were a combined 13 of 29 from the field, Indiana managed just six baskets.

Palmer, meanwhile, had 11 points, nine rebounds and seven assists — matching Indiana's team assist total in a game the Hoosiers seemed to zone out.

"I thought we did a good job getting to Romeo and Juwan, making them play in a crowd," Miles said. "We kept them out of transition for the most part. Getting off to an early lead was probably most important. Getting the

Upset victim Duke No. 1; Kentucky, Marquette on the rise

By AARON BEARD
AP Basketball Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — Duke remained No. 1 for a fourth straight week in The Associated Press men's college basketball poll — enough to give its Hall of Fame coach another record — before the Blue Devils were upset 95-91 in overtime at home on Monday night by unranked Syracuse.

The Blue Devils led an unchanged top 10 in Monday's AP Top 25 and spent their sixth week on top this season. That gave coach Mike Krzyzewski his 122nd week at No. 1 in the AP poll, breaking a tie with the late UCLA coach John Wooden for the most in poll history.

Duke had set a program record for most weeks at No. 1 in the AP poll in November, also by passing UCLA.

The Blue Devils stayed at No. 1 after Atlantic Coast Conference road wins at Wake Forest and Florida State, the latter coming on a last-second 3-pointer by freshman Cam Reddish. Duke received 36 of 64 first-place votes entering a week that already includes the loss to the Orange and will see Duke host No. 4 Virginia in a marquee league matchup between ACC favorites.

THE TOP TIER

With the loss by Duke, second-ranked and unbeaten Michigan looks to be the hair apparent of the top spot. The Wolverines earned nine first-place votes while third-ranked Tennessee had 13 and Virginia — the only other unbeaten team — had the remaining six. That quartet is significantly ahead of the rest of the field, with the gap between the Cavaliers and No. 5 Gonzaga (158 points) being bigger than that between Duke and Virginia (85 points).

Michigan State, Kansas, Texas Tech, Virginia Tech and Nevada rounded out the rest of the top 10 for a second straight week.

RISING

The changes started from there after a week that saw 12 of the 15 teams outside the top 10 lose at least once, with five of those losing twice, and combining for 17 losses.

Five teams rose in the new poll, starting with FSU climbing two spots to No. 11 despite the loss to Duke. No. 12 Kentucky was next, joining No. 15 Marquette as the week's biggest climbers by rising six spots.

No. 16 Buffalo and No. 20 Oklahoma (which lost to Texas Tech last week) each rose three spots.

SLIDING

Six teams fell in this week's poll, most notably No. 24 Mississippi State. The Bulldogs lost to South Carolina and Mississippi last week, then fell 10 spots for the biggest slide among ranked teams in this week's poll.

No. 21 Houston fell four spots after suffering its first loss of the season, which came against Temple. No. 14 Auburn and No. 25 Indiana each fell three spots, No. 17 North Carolina State slid two and No. 13 North Carolina fell one after winning on the road against the Wolfpack, followed by suffering its worst home loss under coach Roy Williams, which came against Louisville.

THE NEWCOMERS

Mississippi had a big week by beating Auburn before its victory over Mississippi State. That was enough to get the Rebels back into the poll at No. 18, the program's first ranking since spending two weeks in the AP Top 25 in January 2013. Pretty good for a team that didn't receive a single vote

“With an older and more experienced team, we might go down six or eight before we do that. But with this team right now they needed that early, especially when it comes to effort. If the effort was there and we were down, that was one thing, but we needed to drive home the point about effort because that’s the only thing that can make us better.”

Leading 41-15 at halftime, Trimble County scored the first 14 points of the third quarter to turn the game into a rout and trigger a running clock. The Raiders led 62-18 after three quarters before St. Francis outscored Trimble 11-5 in the fourth for the final margin.

Ponder was dialed in against St. Francis’ zone and knocked down six 3-pointers en route to a game-high 22 points. Shelby Wilcoxson added 16 points as the two Raiders outscored the Wyverns all by themselves.

“We don’t always see a whole lot of zone and we were pretty stagnant early but we were making the extra pass and we were playing inside-out and we had people catching ready to shoot,” Stewart said. “Abby lit it up which was good to see and Shelby did her typical job of inside and out. There were a lot of positives that we can take away from tonight and build on as we move forward.”

Danielle Craig and Colby O’Connor scored six points each for Trimble while Gracie Jent, Emma Ginn, Gracie Bromwell and Ashlynn Cissell had four each for the Raiders.

Caroline Pepa scored 14 points to lead St. Francis while Lily Johnson added 10.

Trimble returns to action on Thursday when it travels to South Oldham for its second 29th District seed game then face a six-game stretch when the Raiders feel like they can start to get some wins starting with Williamstown on the road on Saturday.

from the panel only a week earlier.

Three teams — No. 19 Maryland, No. 22 Villanova and No. 23 Iowa — returned to the poll after appearances earlier this season.

FALLING OUT

Ohio State (No. 16), Iowa State (No. 20), St. John’s (No. 24) and TCU (No. 25) fell out of the rankings after each lost twice last week.

WOMEN’S TOP 25

Notre Dame remained No. 1 in The Associated Press women’s college basketball poll after beating then-No. 2 Louisville last week.

The Fighting Irish received 23 first-place votes from the 30-member national media panel on Monday. Louisville fell to fourth, swapping places with Baylor, which received six first-place votes. UConn moved into a tie with the Lady Bears for the No. 2 slot. The Huskies got the final first-place vote. The Irish beat Louisville by 14 points and then routed Wake Forest by 30.

Oregon rounded out the first five teams in the poll.

Stanford, Mississippi State, North Carolina State, Maryland and Oregon State fill out the top 10.

Rutgers and DePaul entered the AP Top 25 at Nos. 20 and 24 while Florida State and California fell out.

SOLID BIG TEN

The Big Ten has six teams in the women’s Top 25 for the first time since the first regular-season poll of 2014-15. Maryland leads the way at No. 9.

crowd out of the game. The way you win big road games, you play from the front, and just hang on.”

Nebraska followed that blueprint perfectly, scoring the first nine points and extending the lead to 25-7 midway through the first half.

When the Cornhuskers missed 12 consecutive shots, Indiana closed the deficit to 26-20 late in the first half and got as close as 35-32 early in the second half.

But Nebraska answered with an 8-0 run and closed it out by methodically pulling away late.

BIG PICTURE

Nebraska: The Cornhuskers’ defense can challenge anyone in the Big Ten with its length and versatility. And when they score consistently, they can pose a real threat against any team anywhere.

Indiana: Sure, the bounces didn’t go Indiana’s way. But Miller acknowledged his team was lethargic and out of sync from the start. He knows they need to get better quickly.

STAT PACK

Nebraska: Never trailed in the game. ... The 15-point victory margin was Nebraska’s largest in the series since a 38-18 victory in February 1920. ... Palmer and Copeland made their 50th consecutive starts. ... The Cornhuskers also ended the Hoosiers 26-game home winning streak in December 2016, their last trip to Assembly Hall.

Indiana: Made only four of its first 19 shots and had only nine points with 5 minutes left in the first half. ... The Hoosiers were 2 of 14 form 3-point range and 11 of 19 on free throws. ... Justin Smith was 2 of 7 from the field after making 22 of 27 in the previous five games (81.5 percent). He had five points.

THEY SAID IT

Nebraska: “I thought our guys did a very good job with the game plan from the get go,” Miles said.

Indiana: “We just weren’t getting the ball moved,” Langford said. “We were just playing a little bit too conservative on the 1-3-1, weren’t really attacking, and that’s what you’re supposed to do against the 1-3-1 is attack and get the ball in the middle.”

UP NEXT

Indiana hits the road for the third time in four games when it visits rival Purdue on Saturday (TV: Live on FOX at 2 p.m.).
